Biography

Chris Mondini is ICANN's Vice President, Stakeholder Engagement and Managing Director for Europe, based in Brussels, Belgium. He also leads ICANN's Global Business Engagement initiatives worldwide. Christopher began his professional life as a United States diplomat and later became a corporate investigator with Deloitte. He has investigated some of the world's largest corporate corruption cases, while working with NGOs and business organizations on ways to mitigate corruption risks. He has also led grant-making teams for the Full Circle Fund, an engaged philanthropy organization addressing economic development challenges. Christopher holds degrees from Georgetown University and The Johns Hopkins University. Throughout his career in Washington and Silicon Valley, he has dedicated his career to bridging communications gaps that occur among diverse sectors -- public, private and nonprofit -- and across international borders.
